Social Distancing

Cuddy said, “I cannot reinforce enough the importance of social distancing at this time. For weeks we have been asking residents to practice social distancing by staying home, limiting trips to stores and other public venues. This is not the time to be comfortable or complacent with our behaviors”.

While New York City may be experiencing declines in their numbers, central NY and specifically Cayuga County are seeing an increase in the number of confirmed cases of COVID-19.

Research is showing that individuals can transmit the virus days before showing symptoms of illness. This is why staying home and practicing social distancing matters.

Right now we need to focus on what we can do to prevent the spread of this illness. This virus does not discriminate. It does not matter if you are male or female, how old you are or where you live. This virus is throughout our county and it has caused a death of one our own.

Social distancing is the most effective action we can perform to slow the spread of this virus amongst each other. Staying home when ill, wearing a mask in public while limiting your trips and frequent and thorough hand washing are also important.

Everyone plays a role in preventing the spread of this virus. Complying with our recommendations is imperative to protecting the health of our community in the days and weeks to come.
